Addul & Raheem at Lasalle School for Boys @ 14

Addul and his twin were the 2nd and 3rd child of a drug addicted teenage mother. After realizing she was in no condition to care for the boys she placed them in the social services system. Being removed from a loving foster home and placed with their biological father Addul and his siblings faced constant physical and emotional abuse that led to them again being placed in the system and separated for the majority of their childhood. Addul was eventually reunited with his brother and went on to graduate from high school, serve in the military, and start a family. Addul believes that Walter Williams was correct when he said, " The beauty of America is that while you may know that someone ends up successful, you can't be sure where they started"
